October 1

Sheldon Axler, San Francisco State University

Computing with harmonic functions

This expository talk describes the mathematics behind algorithms for computing solutions to many problems involving harmonic functions. One such problem is the Dirichlet problem: given a polynomial in n variables, find the harmonic function on Euclidean n-space that agrees with the given polynomial on the unit sphere.